COTTON.

WEEKLY REVIEW.

February 17th, middling cotton quoted 11 last day of the previous week with a sharp advance—though not sufficient to recover all the loses of that week—began the past week with "buli" element still in the ascendancy, especially for the distant active months. On the second day (Monday) the advance con-thread, though a disposition to slack off was manifest and fully realized on Tuesday, when the entire list went off 11 to 13 points.

Wednesday being observed as a national holiday, no business transpired. On Thurs-day the decline continued, the losses being greater than on Tuesday. On Friday the re-action recovered nearly all lost on the pre-vious day, and for distant months more than compensated for the depressions of Tuesday and Thursday, the week closing with losses for the first half of the year ranging from 1 to 6 points, and advances for the latter six months ranging from 1 to 7 points. Concerning the influences bearing upon that market the Financial and Commercial Chronicle, of Saturday, has this to say: "The speculaabsence of an active demand and discouraging foreign advices led to selling to realize, inned small run of receipts is attracting nore serious attention both here and abroad and commercing to neutralize the effect of the cotton is sight. The argument is that he foreign spinners now feel that it would be better if they had control of a larger por-the movement, while some of the leading operators here are using every effort to de press matters and squeeze out holders, but at the same time are said to be quietly acquiring ownership against the sharp rise to come, when the long deferred proof of a short crop is given. The bears, however, claim this to be a somewhat elderly story, with a slight variation of costume, and are confident that the process of liquidation must continue until cost is low enough to insure absolute

Signal service report: River 35 feet 3 nches-rise 1 inch during the 24 hours ending 1:08 p.m. yesterday. Slight rises were reported in the upper Massissippi, but declines at all points on the Ohio, Tenness and Cumberland.

Mr. Wm. Smithers, the old-time and popular clerk of the Coahoma, left last night to Evansville, accompanied by his wife. Mr Smithers has retired from the river business to engage in other pursuits at Evansville and carries with him the hearty well-wishe f his scores of friends here.

Mr. Hugh Tomlinson has been promoted to the first clerkship of the Coahoma, made vacant by the resignation of Mr. William Smithers. Mr. Tomlinson has well earned his promotion by his faithfulness and efficiency, in subordinate clerkships on the Coahoma, Osceola, Belle, and other local packets during the past several years, and the AP-PEAL extends him hearty congratulations. The W. P. Halliday arrived at this por at 6 o'clock Sunday morning, just 3 days and 12 hours out from New Orleans. She lost 6 hours on the voyage by fog and bad weather, which leaves her running time 3 days and 6 hours. She cleaned out boilers here, and nours. She cleaned out boilers here, and left for St. Louis in the afternoon, discharging a lot of freight and 15 passengers. Her cabin register showed 130 passengers aboard when she arrived here.

Louisville Courier-Journal, Saturday: "We had the pleasure of a visit from Mr. Lloyd Whitlow and Mr. Arthur Browne, the popular clerks of the 'rattling' Jim Lee, of Memphis, yesterday. These gentlemen are in the enjoyment of a little 'jaunt' while the Jim is laid up for high water, and are receiving a royal welcome among their many friends here. They are smong the best and most popular clerks on the river."

At Cairo Saturday night James Biggs, steamboat sgent, was shot to death by Nick Mayfield, a bill clerk at the Mississippi

Central railroad office. An eye-witness sa the quarrel began in the Iron Mountair railroad office, in a word, about nothing Final y Biggs drew a small revolver, ordered Mayfield out of the office and followed him Mayfield out of the office and followed him, both quarreling. Mayfield turned at the door of the Pfanters' House, which is adjoining the railroad office, and as Biggs approached fired five shots, and at last Biggs fell and Mayfield escaped. Biggs was dead when he fell, shot through the heart. Death of a Good Man.

Captain James G. Andrews, late owner and commander of the H. J. Dickey, and formerly of the Osceoia Belle and other, packets ply ing between Memphis and the upper bend trade, died at the rooms of his brother, Mr. Horace Andrews, in this city late Sunday evening, of congestion, contracted by expo-sure on his farm on Dean Island. Captain Andrews held a high place in the good opin-ions of the people of Memphis and contigu-ous to the river between here and Osceola. The Ecening Ledger gives the following brief biographical sketch of nim: "The deceased was in his 45th year, and was a native of Bradford, N. H., where his mother and father, Bradford, N. H., where his mother and lather, now 82 and 83 years of age respectively, still reside. Besides his brother Horace, another brother lives at Concord, N. H., and two others at Minneapolis, Minn. Captain James G. Andrews came this city some 14 years ago and engaged in river service, running boats in sev' eral local packet trades. He was best known along the river between here and Candy Send St. $2.$1 or $5 for a retail where he ran the steamer Frank Forrest, of the beet of the control o time he controlled it. A year or two ago Captain Andrews sold his mail and packet interests to Captain James Lee, since which he has devoted himself to the improvement of Dean's Island, which he had purchased some years before; also the timber and lum ber business, the two enterprises requiring the employment of several hundred hand
